Start date 2018-07-21
Ending date 2018-08-10
Location Galeria Labirynt 2, Lublin, ul. Grodzka 3
Participation for free

The exhibition is the result of several months of the educational project Watch Out! Devoted, among others, to exploring the public space of Lublin’s Old Town and the Lublin Housing Cooperative. Participants were both theoretician of art and artists themselves. The project evolved, focusing especially on the market space in Ruska Street, and thus becoming for the project participants a symbolic reference to the art market in broad terms.

Curator Valerie Karpan took advantage of the two-level exhibition space of Galeria Labirynt 2, dividing the exhibition into two parts. The first one summarizes the project, presenting documentation and research results related to the city and its history based on creative meetings and discussions that were part of Watch Out!. The other part of the exhibition is the result of reflections on the world of art and the analogy between the art market and the marketplace, as well as the effect of observations of a specific place and people.
